

Paris Photo, the world's premier art fair dedicated to photography, makes a grand return for its 26th edition, promising a jam-packed schedule in the heart of the French capital.

— by Josh Bright, November 6, 2023

As was the case last year, the fair will feature the Main Sector, consisting of 133 galleries from 21 different countries, showcasing works that span the full spectrum of photography, from historical masterpieces to groundbreaking creations by emerging artists.

The Curiosa sector, curated by the new Paris Photo Artistic Director, Ana Planas, focuses on emerging art and highlights 17 artists making their Paris Photo debut, whilst the Publisher's sector also makes its return, with 35 participants from around the world.

In an exciting development, a new sector solely dedicated to digital photography has been introduced. Curated by Nina Roehrs, the founder of Swiss Gallery Roehrs & Boetsch, this sector brings together galleries and platforms that explore the intersection of art and new technologies in photography. Additionally, the Elles x Paris Photo initiative returns, featuring a special curated path by Fiona Rogers, showcasing the work of 36 artists from various galleries at the fair, alongside a series of engaging talks and conversations.

Among the highlights of the 20 solo and 6 duo shows are new works by Samuel Fosso, widely recognized as one of Africa's most influential contemporary artists and the winner of this year's Deutsche Börse Photography Foundation Prize, presented by Paris' Christophe Person Gallery, and London's Photographer's Gallery will showcase "Mystery Street," the latest project by Vasantha Yoganathan.

The 26th edition of Paris Photo will run from NOV 09-12 2023. For more information and to purchase tickets, visit their website.
